THE INAUGURATION.

TX/ASHINGTON and thousands of visitors from over the country witnessed the inauguration of President Roosevelt last Saturday, perhaps the biggest crowd ever assembled at the capital for a similar occasion.

No president in modern years has entered upon the duties of chief executive at a more momentous time. The new president is looked to for much, possibly more than ordinarily, but at this time and from this slant it does seem he will be equal to the occasion. He will rise far above the situation and in time the chaotic condition of the country will be but a matter of history.

Mr. Roosevelt is a man of great force, a man of resourefulness and of reserve. In every trust served he has proven his worth and wisdom and the country is not going to be disappointed in their hopes piled high as to what to expect.

DLENTY has been said about the orgy of building which took place during the boom years providing more dwellings than there was any need for. But now that several years have passed, this overproduction has been well averaged down.

There never was a better time to do either, than now. Lumber, cement and other basic materials are selling at rock-bottom prices. So are electrical and plumbing and roofing supplies. There is an abundance of labor, skilled and unskilled. The citizen who builds a home today or repairs the old one, not only obtains a bargain but strikes a blow at depression. Money spent for construction and maintenance of property covers a wide area and alights in many pockets. It has a powerful stimulating effect on the national purchasing power.

MEXAS banks were placed under a 5-day holiday order by Governor Miriam A. Furgeson. This state-wide financial moratorium was issued late Thursday, Mar. March 8th, but a later national banking holiday proclaimed by President Roosevelt countermanded the governor's decree.

San Antonio business men and the public in general accepted the bank holiday with casual compliance. There was little, if any, panic reaction observed on the crowded streets, as newsboys shouted 'Texas Bank Holiday' headline from final evening editions of the papers.

WITH THE STATE PRESS.

(Witner Haven, (Fla.) Herald)

USSELL KAY, in his talk before the Exchange Club a few weeks ago, brought out some thoughts about the home town newspaper which are perhaps not so generally known, but are well worth remembering. Mr. Kay, a former newspaper man, manager of a newspaper clipping service in Tampa, has had a wide experience in publicity work and his remarks are worthy of serious consideration because they come from one who is in close their loyalty to their president, flag touch with newspaper work, although not being directly interested from a selfish standpoint.

> "The community" he said, "is judged largely by its newspaper or papers, by outsiders, and the type of newspaper produced in a certain community is governed to a large extent by the community it serves." In other words, the newspaper unconsciously reflects the spirit of the city in which it is issued. If its merchants are progressive and wideawake, this fact will be mirrored in the local papers, not only through the liberal amount of local advertising carried, but also in the tone of the news columns, composition, make-up and printing. If the town is dead and unprogressive, the paper, trying to carry on and make ends meet, with little or no advertising support, will suffer from lack of many things that go to make a good newspaper and as a result it is apt to be badly edited, poorly printed and just about as unpro gressive as the town it represents. Mr. Kay stressed the fact that manufacturers, advertising agencies and large moneyed interests judge a town largely by the local papers and the papers carrying little local advertising pictures to their minds a "They are likely to think I am doing city that is unprogressive: For so little business I cannot afford to this reason, he says, newspapers are keep my name before the buying of more value to a community than the average person realizes. Regardless of the high ambitions of the publisher and the amount of ability he has at his command, certain expenses must be met. #### TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

CONDITIONS TODAY are such as have never been witnessed before, but we have not lost faith in our country, our fellowmen nor our Lord.

We all like an optimist, but this is no time to be a blind one. It is a time when we should face facts; and by plain talk, square dealing and loyal co-operation one with the other, we can hope for "Happy Landings." We all know that no one can succeed who does not get his overhead down so that he can show a profit. The Landlord who will not reduce rents so you can continue business and he continue to get rent, is a blind optimist. The man who has not reduced salaries to the point where he can get by is a blind optimist. If our Government, Federal and State, does not reduce taxes so they can be met, then they are blind optimists.

If you keep selling and charging to customers who pay nothing on past due accounts, you cannot possibly expect to have money to replace the merchandise which you have sold. Have you really been a friend to that customer by permitting him to pile up his account? No; except in extreme cases of sickness, then yes; and everyone of sound mind is willing to help his fellowman when in actual distress.

The customer who always takes care of his bills is entitled to credit until such time as he fails to meet his obligation. The customer who has not been able to take care of his obligation in the past, we will be riend most by insisting on his paying as he goes, at least as much as he buys, and if possible something on his past due account.

We have more money in the bank than usual and owe them not a penny, but until conditions are clarified we can't touch it to replace merchandise; and if we are to continue to serve you we must proceed along safe and sound lines. We have served you in the past according to times and conditions; we expect to keep on serving you in the future, giving you the best accommodations possible, the best value money can buy, and by being reasonable in all things.

Sincerely yours,

C. B. MOLLERE.

SODALITY NEWS. At the weekly meeting Thursday ways and means of keeping the Lenten season were discussed. The Sodalists were urged to attend mass and receive Communion as frequently as possible. The Character builder for the month of March was explained. Each girl was asked to start her character tower now if it handn't been started. Charts will be made and given to each sodalist to keep an account of the Masses and Communions she receives during Lent and her individual character

It was suggested to divide the Sodality into six groups of seven girls each and to have each group allotted one special day during the week to hear Mass, thus having the Sodality represented at Mass every day during the week.

Another topic discussed was the contest which is being held under the auspices of the Queen's work to select by ballot the twelve greatest Catholic women in America. Serious thought and preparation was asked to be given to this matter so that a good choice may be made.

The Mission Committee was advised to get to work and try to collect mission money from the girls. Each class will buy its own pagan baby as usual so the girls were warned to begin collecting now.

HIGH SCHOOL ENJOYS TALK ON LOGIC.

An agreeable surprise was in store for the High School girls Monday. They were a little dubious at first when they were told that afternoon they were to be introduced to the rudiments of Logic which science seemed so far above them, but when they assembled in the Study Hall that afternoon it took very little time for Father Fahey to make that formidable name "Logic" perfectly clear to them. And now after two days of it the girls feel that they have some sort of acquaintance, even if only a passing one with "syllogisms" "majoes," and "minoes"

For this foundation which leads to the study of Argumentations and Debating the girls wish to acknowledge their indebtedness to Father Fahey who so kindly gave them so much of his valuable time.
